Nice To Meet You

I'm a Graphic Designer based in Kansas City.
My design journey started in high school, and as I learned more about the creative industries, my interest in understanding the people and the world around me blossomed. I got more fascinated by the "why" and "how" of design every day, and I am constantly learning more about the way things are made as well as why they are made that way. I strive to create an easier and more beautiful world in every interaction, big and small.
